

Introducing the.....

who will be entertaining you in Devonport, Tasmania, on the 7th February 2020.

With a three-piece line-up, the Urban Outlaws have now been performing together for some 15-16 years, regularly appearing in a variety of venues across the top end of Tassy between Bicheno and Queenstown – and most places in between.

The Urban Outlaws play a wide variety of popular easy listening and dance music by artists such as country vocalists Merle Haggard, George Strait, Johnny Cash, Charley Pride, Glen Campbell and Alan Jackson – as well as the best of popular music from the last 60 odd years by artists and bands such as Roy Orbison, Elvis Presley, Buddy Holly, Cliff Richards, Smokie, Herman's Hermits, Bee Gees and even the Beatles and Rolling Stones.

The Urban Outlaws popularity is based largely on their ability to play the music the way the audience remembers hearing it – this being made possible by the fact that the three members of the band have an average age of approx. 70, and were actually around during those times which some of the world's best popular music was first released.

The Urban Outlaws members are.....

KELVIN YOUD

Born in N E Tasmania, Kelvin is related to the famous 'Youd' woodchopping family and until recently, was himself an active competitor in wood chopping arenas across the country. Kelvin is the lead vocalist for the Urban Outlaws, and although his musical career has been somewhat shorter than the other two members, he has developed a faithful following among the group's supporters. Kelvin has an unbelievable memory for lyrics and can switch seamlessly between the various styles of music performed. Kelvin lives in Wesley Vale.

GRAEME BEST

Graeme is a multi-talented musician plays both lead and rhythm guitar with the Urban Outlaws. He is also an accomplished vocalist, performing not only a huge quantity of solo material, but also providing excellent harmony vocals. Born in Hobart, Graeme began playing in local Hobart bands in the 1960s, and since then has been involved with a variety of popular working duos and bands. Graeme has also been involved in several music clubs and regularly performs at a variety of charity functions along the NW Coast of Tassy. Graeme now lives in Kimberley.

GEOFF QUINN

Born in Ulverstone, Geoff bought his first guitar when he was 11 and began playing in his first serious band while serving in the Navy - venues including the likes of Huskisson, Nowra, Woolongong and Canberra. After returning to Tassy, he also lived in Hobart for several years where he entertained as a solo artist in a variety of pub bars etc. In 1971 he moved to Railton, and since then he has played bass guitar for a variety of different duos and bands, and has also been involved in both music clubs and regular charity performances. He has been the bassist for the Urban Outlaws since the band was formed. He also sings harmony vocals. Geoff now lives in Shearwater

The Urban Outlaws – Kelvin, Graeme and Geoff – look forward to meeting you at the Devonport Showground early next year. Bring your ‘listening ears’ and your ‘dancing feet’ and we will do our level best to make your special night an enjoyable one for all !!

*Cheers to all,
Geoff Quinn
(for the Outlaws)*
